Lucas Delafosse

Paysagiste-ethnologue

co-founder of the Monono agency

Trained at the Versailles School of Landscaping, Lucas acquired in-depth knowledge of the different fields and scopes of action, as well as of the issues and problems related to the project's approach. He draws on his background in ethnology to find the right and necessary distance and question the various components of the projects he takes part in – be it communication, strategies and actions. He believes that the form and the content of his projects and their presentation are just as important, convinced that graphic means of communication play a major part in the transmission of knowledge and ideas.
